Kaua'i police assist in search for missing children

LĪHU'E – The Kaua'i Police Department is assisting the Rexburg Police Department in regards to an active case pertaining to the missing children of Lori Vallow.

Her two children, 17-year-old Tylee Ryan and 7-year-old Joshua Vallow, have been missing since the end of September 2019.

Vallow and her husband, Chad Daybell, have been staying on Kaua'i for an unconfirmed period of time.

On Jan. 25, Kaua'i police served Vallow with an order of petition in an attempt to have her physically produce her children to the Idaho Department of Health and Welfare.

On Jan. 26, Kaua'i police and Rexburg police executed a search warrant in support of the ongoing investigation related to the whereabouts of the two children.

There are no local charges or any current warrants of arrest.

"KPD's desire is to continue to assist the Rexburg police in whatever way we can with their efforts to locate the missing children," said Kaua'i Police Chief Todd G. Raybuck. "It's our sincere hope that the children have a safe return."

The investigation remains ongoing and is being led by Rexburg police. For further information regarding the case, contact Rexburg PD's Capt. Gary Hagen at 208-359-3008.
