Multi-agency search continues for missing man

WAILUA – Police, firefighters, lifeguards, and personnel from the U.S. Coast Guard are searching for a missing Līhu'e man and is asking for the public's assistance in locating him.

Police have identified the man as 55-year-old Darall Pascua, who has no permanent address but is known to frequent the Līhu'e area. He was reported missing on Saturday, shortly before 9:30 a.m., and was last seen wearing red-, green-, and yellow-colored board shorts with no shirt.

According to a preliminary report, Pascua was standing on the reef in waters off of Marine Camp, near the Wailua Golf Course, while attempting to retrieve a fishing net about 50 yards from shore. A friend on shore lost sight of him and called 911.

Kapa'a firefighters, lifeguards on jet ski, Rescue 3 specialists aboard Air 1, and the on-duty Battalion Chief responded to the call and initiated an air- and sea-based search. The U.S. Coast Guard also assisted in the search with its Air Station Barbers Point HM-65 Dolphin helicopter and Station Kaua'i 45-foot Response Boat Medium.

The search was suspended Saturday evening at approximately 5 p.m., with the exception of U.S. Coast Guard units who continued the search through Saturday night. Search efforts resumed Sunday morning with all involved agencies and assets including the U.S. Coast Guard cutter Joesph Gerzcak (WPC-1126). Shoreline searches were also conducted Sunday by the Kaua'i Police Department. So far there has been no sight of Pascua.

Police do not suspect foul play in Pascua's disappearance.

Anyone with information on Pascua's possible whereabouts is urged to call Kaua'i police at 241-1711.
